

Women in Operations Excellence

Join us to learn about leadership from a woman who started her career as a supermarket clerk and proceeded to break through several glass ceilings in the male-dominated automotive industry.

Cheryl Jones is vice president of Manufacturing at Toyota Manufacturing in Kentucky, where she is responsible for assembly, production control, and organizational development. In 2005, she was named among 100 Leading Women in the North American Auto Industry by Automotive News.

In her 20-year journey to the top, Jones achieved many firsts at Toyota, including becoming the carmaker's first female assembly-line worker and first female plant manager. We invite you to learn how Toyota's quest for kaizen, or continuous improvement, got Cheryl where she is today.

Women in Operations Excellence featuring Cheryl Jones

Tuesday, May 22

8:30–10:30 a.m.

Sponsored by the Center for Operational Excellence
Fisher College of Business
202 Pfahl Hall
280 W. Woodruff Ave.
Columbus, OH 43210

RSVP to Jackie Grueser at (614) 292-1275
or grueser.1@osu.edu.

“Never turn down
an opportunity in your career.”

Cheryl Jones

FISHER
COLLEGE OF BUSINESS

fisher.osu.edu/coe