The Undergraduate Veterans Leadership Program provides leadership and professional development opportunities to first-year veteran and military students from across The Ohio State University.

Presented by The Ohio State University Office of Military and Veterans Services and the Fisher Leadership Initiative at the Max M. Fisher College of Business, the two-day event connects students with critical resources, knowledge, experiences and a network of peers as they begin their academic careers at Ohio State.

Highlights of the 2018 program

- Full day “Start with Why” leadership and personal development session
- Professional development workshops delivered by veterans at companies including Huntington National Bank, Nationwide Financial Services and The Wendy’s Corporation
- Sessions led by faculty and staff to highlight academic and support resources for student veterans
- Discussions and networking with successful Ohio State alumni

Initial Impact

- 12 incoming first-year student veterans participants
- 5 student veteran peers or community advocates facilitators
- 92 percent of participants indicated they would strongly recommend program to future student
- 100 percent of participants indicated interest in future leadership programs

“I’m just in awe at how many resources that are here and available to you as a veteran student.”

— Cashay Moorer, 2018 participant
